(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 3.—(via Koukaza).—The Inter-Allied Supreme Council has received official confirmation of the fall of Bela Kun.

The new Government demands at the same time that the Allies shall arrest the march of the Rumanians on Budapest.

The Council considers it expedient to wait in order to judge the new Hungarian Government by its actions.

According to the Chicago Tribune the Council expects action indicating that the terms of the Armistice and the new frontiers will be respected in return for the Rumanians remaining in their present positions.

Report Of Conferences

Berlin, July 30.—A message from Vienna states that Ageston, the Hungarian Commissary whom Bela Kun charged to open negotiations with Colonel Cunningham, declares that he proposed the following: The resignation of the Soviet Government, the formation of a new government by the Social-Democrats and the Bourgeois parties, the installation of a military dictatorship for the transitional period under Allied direction and parliamentary elections to take place under the protection of the dictatorship.

A conference subsequently occurred in Vienna between Colonel Cunningham and Count Dethlen, representing the counter-revolutionary Government.

Subsidiary Corporation Of Great American Concern Plans Extensive Expansion Program For Far East With Main Offices Here

The nucleus of a Far Eastern sales organisation, to cover the territory from Siberia to Australia for the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours Export Company of New York, will be formed in Shanghai when the main offices of the Du Pont organisation in the Far East open in the Union Building on September first. The company is a subsidiary to the Du Pont Company of Wilmington, Delaware, incorporated for G.$250,000,000.

The Far Eastern expansion program is to be directed by Mr. T. E. Doremus, who arrived in Shanghai after spending a month of investigation in Japan. Mr. Doremus will make his headquarters here and Shanghai is to be the center of Du Pont interests in the Orient. Mr. H. B. Du Pont products, including Fabrikoid, Pyralin, paints, dyes, chemicals, and blasting appliances, will be sold, and one of the features of the offices about to open will be an exhibit of Du Pont products. Fabrikoid, a substitute for leather, which is largely used for automobile tops and upholstery, interior decorating, book binding, manufacture of trunks, bags and sporting goods and other articles made from leather, and Pyralin, a substitute for ivory used in the making of toilet articles, are two of the latest productions of the Du Pont factories.

The manufacture of dyes and dyestuffs came with the entry of the United States in the war and the Du Pont factories are now producing indigo and other dyes in large quantities.

For years the company has been manufacturing the various chemicals used in its many factories and now, with enlarged plants built during the war, are in a position to supply the requirements of a widely diversified line of producers. The Shanghai offices will distribute small package goods to wholesalers. Household cement, ether, bronze powders and liquids and other parcel goods will be sold through the local organisation.

Report Many Dead Of Cholera In Mukden

Fear Spread Of Disease To Peking And Tientsin; Local Situation Easier

(CHINA PRESS OWN SERVICE)

Tientsin, August 4.—Since July 29 it is reported, there have been over 300 deaths from cholera in Mukden. Suspected cases are being found in many places throughout South Manchuria and there is apprehension that the epidemic may spread toward Tientsin and Peking.

ASPECT BRIGHTER HERE

The cholerale epidemic in Shanghai showed a more hopeful aspect yesterday from the viewpoint of hospital figures, though many new cases are being reported in the Hongkew District. A considerable number of Japanese residents have been affected and several foreigners of other nationality are also sufferers.

There was a noticeable slackening in the calls made upon the Red Cross Summer Diseases Hospital and at 5 p.m. there were 130 cases in the institution, some 40 transfusions being given during the day. Three deaths were recorded. In the premises fitted up at 1 Taku Road there were 30 patients and it was stated that there were about 50 cases still at the Chinese Public Isolation hospital.

The congested conditions at the Summer Diseases Hospital have been largely eased during the past few days, owing to the establishment of the Taku Road station and to decreased calls for admission and it is now no longer necessary to place patients in the courts or hallways.

Up to 5 o'clock yesterday the Summer Diseases Hospital had recorded 3,768 cases of choleraic diarrhoea, many of these however being outpatients. A total of 278 deaths had been registered since the hospital's opening three weeks ago.

St. Luke's Receives Patients

An educational campaign will be inaugurated at St. Luke's Hospital today when some 75 Boy Scouts, who are to give lectures in Hongkew, will receive instructions. The Scouts will be sent out to explain methods of evading the disease. Over 10,000 pamphlets will be distributed by the hospital authorities.

Eight cases of choleraic dysentery have been treated at St. Luke's and three persons have been discharged cured.

The hospital will receive free patients beginning today, a separate ward having been set apart where 50 poor people may be accommodated. Two wards have been isolated and the patients will be received at the Nanzing Road entrance in order to decrease chances of infection.

Four visiting physicians and seven Chinese doctors, and internes, comprise the staff.

'To Restore Kiaochow, Japanese Charge At Washington Declares

New Light Thrown On Plans Of Nipponese In Shantung In Interview

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, August 2.—The following telegram from Washington, dated July 28, has been received by the American Legation:

Mr. Debuchi, Japanese Charge d'Affaires in Washington, in a press interview, is quoted as expressing his personal views and says.

"Japan is firmly determined to restore to China her sovereignty over the leased territory of Kiaochow and is also ready to open negotiations with China as soon as possible."

He adds that the Tsingtao-Tsinanfu Railway, which was formerly undeniably under exclusive German management, will now be placed under the joint operation of China and Japan, so likewise will the fortified port of Tsingtau be opened to foreign trade in general without any discrimination. Japan contemplates for the future the maintenance in Tsingtau of a Japanese settlement and also an international settlement like the Shanghai Settlement.

Under the China Treaty Germany exercised the right of stationing troops in Kiaochow but Japan is firmly determined to withdraw every one of her troops in Shantung as soon as possible, subject, however, to China signing the German Peace Treaty and also to a subsequent agreement to be made between China and Japan regarding the disposition of these territories.

Work Of Commission

The Commission has further examined other prejudicial motions: the first, which is a motion to postpone the vote on the Peace Treaty until the American Senate has voted, was passed over: three others will come up for discussion after an address on the report of M. Louis Barthou, which is fixed for next Tuesday.

Further, the Senatorial Commission has examined the political clauses of the Treaty. The Commission heard M. Couyba on the political and territorial causes concerning Belgium, Limburg and the places on the left bank of the Rhine, the Rhine provinces and the Palatinate: M. Deyelle on the economic clauses affecting the Czecho-Slovak State, Poland, East Prussia and Schleswig: and M. Goy on the economic clauses relating to ports, water-ways and railways.

He said that the treaty should bring happiness to Poland. The Poles had protested against providing for German education rights in Poland when Poles are not similarly provided for in Germany. The Allies, however, had assured the Poles that when the Germans applied for admission to the League of Nations these rights would be a condition of Germany's admission.

Plea To America

Sittings Of Council

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 3.—(Via Lyons and Koukasa).—The Inter-Allied Supreme Council devoted its sitting on Saturday to the Hungarian and Rumanian question. Indeed news had been received that morning in Paris of the resignation of the Hungarian Commissary, Bela Kun, and that he had been succeeded by a purely Socialist Ministry. But the manner in which this has come to pass gives rise to suspicions concerning the regime which has just been installed at Pesth and it will be prudent to await its first moves. Thus the situation is judged by the Council of Five, who, despite the protestations of respect made by M. Preidl, the future head of the Government, which he asserts is socialist, but not communist, have replied to his request to arrest the march of Rumanians to the gates of Buda-Pesth that the Allies will judge the new Hungarian Cabinet by its actions. They added that the Rumanians are not bound to observe the clauses of the Armistice unless, on their side, the Hungarians will conform to the oft reiterated conditions concerning their disarmament.

Discuss Bulgaria And Hungary

Paris, August 2.—(Via Koukaza).—The Inter-Allied Supreme Council is still occupied with the questions of Bulgaria and Hungary.

Paris, August 2.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—The Supreme Council examined the evacuation by the Jugo-Slavs of the Basin of Klagenfurt, a district which is disputed between the Austrians and the Slavs.

At the request of the Kingdom of the Servians, Croats and Slovenes, some provisional measures for its preservation were taken with regard to the district of Baranya, between the Drina and the Danube, pending the establishment of definite frontiers in this region between Jugo-Slavia and Hungary.

The Council then dealt with the question of Eastern Galicia and the Spitzbergen Commission and examined the documents which have been transmitted to the Council by the Norwegian Minister in Paris, Baron F. de Wedel Jarlsberg.

Commission To Be Named

Paris, July 30.—The Supreme Council has practically decided to constitute a special Inter-Allied Commission to co-ordinate all operations in connection with the execution of the clauses of the Peace Treaty.

The headquarters will be in Paris but may be moved to their Capitals as occasion demands.

CHURCHILL AGAINST USE OF TROOPS IN STRIKES

Asserts Forces Must Not Be Employed In Disputes Of Capital And Labor

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—In the House of Commons today, replying to a labor speech in which reference was made to the question of using troops for strike-breaking, Mr. Winston Churchill, Secretary of State for War, after pointing out that there was no strike-breaking anywhere, said he thought it was odious that the forces of the State should be used to interfere in a dispute between capital and labor in order to advance the interest of the employers or of a particular group of workmen. The whole idea of a free country was that they should have the right to fight it out within reasonable limits.

Continuing, Mr. Churchill said that the forces of the State must never be employed in questions where private interest was the motive power but the position which the Government were taking up had been accepted: namely, that where the State as a whole is challenged and where the life and welfare of the community as a whole was endangered then obviously the State must use all the resources at its disposal to fight without flinching to the bitter end.

Mr. Winston Churchill, in conclusion, remarked that the army raised by voluntary enlistment has reached 250,000 and conscription would disappear when the present Acts expired. We did not contemplate a larger standing army than before the war but it would be better paid and equipped in every way.

He expressed the opinion that the worst difficulties were over.

Referring to the threat of a national strike over the Triple Alliance program cabled recently, the Secretary of State for War pointed out that the withdrawal of our forces from Russia was decided upon at the beginning of the year and conscription, as was always intended, was passing away.

With regard to the circular anent the use of the military in the event of a strike, it had been fully explained that it was devoid of political significance and no member of the Cabinet saw the circular before it was issued. None of the conscientious objectors was now in prison. Therefore this series of grievances was obsolete and if the extremists did not hurry up with the general strike agitators would have to get hold of a brand new outfit.

He hoped they would not be frightened by this sort of thing but would carry out their pledges to the electors and securely maintain the great position we have attained in the world.

POLICE FORCE MEMBERS BACK WITH WAR HONORS

Five Service Men Back Home; Sgt. W.D. McGillivray Wins Belgian Cross

Four years ago Messrs. William and W. D. McGillivray, cousins, left their positions with the Shanghai Municipal Police and departed for London to enlist in the British army. Yesterday they returned, one minus his left hand and the other wearing the Belgian Croix de Guerre, awarded him for conspicuous gallantry in action.

Sergeant William McGillivray was attached to Hongkew Station before leaving for the Front. He joined the Argyle and Sutherland regiment and lost his hand when a German shell dropped among a group of British soldiers, killing four outright and wounding six others and himself.

Sergeant W. D. McGillivray, who was at Louza Station, enlisted in the Black Watch soon after he reached England. He was in France a few months later and his bravery brought him the coveted Belgian decoration, a Cross of War.

Three other members of the local police department returned yesterday from war service. They are:

Mr. R. Young of West Hongkew Station, who was in the London Scottish; Mr. W. M. Calder, formerly of the detective staff at Harbin Road Station, and Mr. Nathan Bournes, who left his position at Sinza Station in 1914 and was in the 10th Yorkshire regiment.

Bostock's Circus

A circus under a theater roof is a unique entertainment but Bostock's does it successfully. Driven out of its tent by last Saturday's storm, Bostock's opened last night at the Lyceum Theater and the entertainment suffers but little in the change.

The Lyceum stage, properly arranged, is bigger than one supposes and it offers plenty of scope for the Bostock program. Even the sensational chute act, a fitting climax to the evening, was given exactly as in the tent, with an added thrill from the daring slide being over the heads of the audience. This act, that of the Vardells, is in itself worth going for. It is a piece of consummate daring splendidly done.

The flying trapeze act by Mlle. Lorenz also suffers nothing from the change of setting. The dog, monkey and pony acts are even more amusing at closer range. They did last evening a variety of really novel stunts. One of the funniest numbers in the program last night was the skit, "The Deserter," by two ponies, several dogs and some monkeys. It is a military scene, an execution, carried out with comical fidelity, even to the burial.

The circus is worth seeing, as much so at the Lyceum as in the tent.

BRITISH MISSION CHIEF TALKS ABOUT DENIKIN

General Briggs Tells Members Of Commons Forces Of Russian Leader Are Loyal

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 31.—Speaking at a meeting of members of the House of Commons today, at which General Briggs, Chief of the British Military Mission with General Denikin, gave details of General Denikin's achievements with British help, Mr. Winston Churchill said that General Denikin had the nucleus of a good army. They might advance or they might be driven back, but they would continue to fight while they lived.

He reminded the meeting that General Denikin and Admiral Koltchak had from the first declared war on Germany and had never swerved from the path of freedom and honor we ourselves have been treading since the war began.

Mr. Churchill said he could not forget what Russia did for us at the beginning of the War, when Paris might have been taken if she had not pushed on her armies. It was most pathetic that in the Peace celebrations the Russians could not take any part. Our policy was, after all, most moderate; it was to endeavor to give a measure of support to General Denikin which did not involve the sending of troops.

London, July 30.—Replying to a joint deputation of the London County Council and Non-conformist Ministers who presented congratulations on the conclusion of Peace at Buckingham Palace, the King said the awakened consciousness of the nation demanded new developments and the removal of many great defects in the social system.

His Majesty emphasised the need of better housing and education—education that would develop to the fullest extent the nation's physical, mental and spiritual potentialities. Then there was the care of the weak and helpless: the protection of infant life and the guardianship and training of those unfitted for life's daily struggle, all of which matters were very near the heart of the Queen and himself.

RAIL WRECKS FEATURE OF STRIKE AT HARBIN

Help Of Military Authorities To Be Asked; Bolshevist Influence At Work

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, August 1.—The strike here still continues and is causing [illegible] which are undoubtedly justified.

The strike is continuing despite the fact that the Railway Administration has agreed to pay the workmen with Romanoff money.

It is evident the strike is not only an economic strike, for the workmen are now presenting political claims inspired by the Bolshevists.

Reuter's correspondent is reliably informed that the Hunhutzes are displaying activity all along the line of the Chinese-Eastern Railway.

At Pogranichnia station a band of 700 Hunhutzes attacked the Chinese Part of the settlement and burned down half the Chinese market, killing and wounding many Chinese.

The prevailing opinion is that this movement is in connection with Bolshevism.

Chinese Troops Arrive

Harbin, July 27.—Two trains with Chinese troops have arrived here. A detachment was immediately despatched along the Sungari against the Hunghutzes.

Appeals To Workers

Harbin, July 27.—General Pleshkoff appealed today to the railway employes in Harbin, reminding them that strike was a criminal act when their brothers were fighting in Siberia, especially as the administration is ready to fulfil all their requests, and threatening to arrest and try under martial-law those who do not return to work by the 28th.

Vladivostok Strike Ends

Harbin, July 27.—Reuter's correspondent is officially informed that the strike of employes of the Russian Volunteer Fleet in Vladivostok has come to an end, as well as the strike of workmen employed in the docks at Blagovestcheask, where part of the workmen have been replaced by others.

YALE PROFESSOR SPEAKS AT KULING CONVENTION

Dr. Beach Urges Advisory Aid For China At Opening Meeting

(China Press Correspondence)

Kuling, July 30.—"As representatives of Western countries we must contribute our little to those inquiring minds who ask about government. We must present principles and not illustrations. We do not need to disparage our own countries but it is our duty to make China our central thought. In our school work we should give China that information that will help her develop her resources. China in the new era will be not only a self supporting nation but also an exporting nation."

In these words Dr. Harlam P. Beach, professor of Foreign Missions at Yale University, developed his subject of "Patriotism and the Divine Commission" in speaking at one of the opening meetings of the annual Kuling Convention yesterday morning. Dr. Beach, who is well acquainted with practically every mission field in the world, spoke of great men in Africa, Turkey, China and Japan who made these countries their central thought.

The Convention this year is fortunate in having a splendid group of leaders. The attendance has been unusually large in spite of numerous other attractions in Kuling.

Du Pont Offices Will Open On Sept. 1

sales for the Du Pont Company during 1918 were over G.$329,000,000 and the organisation owns and operates many plants manufacturing a varied line of merchandise.

Established in 1802, the company was best known for many years as a manufacturer of explosives. Fifteen years ago the expansion program was started that brought the annexation of many lines.

Not To Deal In Explosives

The armistice brought about a curtailment in the manufacture of military explosives, 1919 contracts amounting to G.$260,000,000 were cancelled, and the organisation immediately made arrangements for the production of peace-time products on a huge scale. During the war the Du Pont Company furnished 1,466,761,219 pounds of military explosives of all kinds to the United States and Allied Governments.

The Far Eastern organisation will not deal in explosives. "It will scientifically sell peace-time products of the great Du Pont factories," Mr. Doremus said yesterday. "We plan to eventually include Japan, Siberia, the Dutch East Indies, the Philippines, Straits Settlements, Hongkong, India, New Zealand and Australia in our expansion program."

In speaking of the achievement of the Du Pont organisation during the war, Mr. Doremus said that the corporation purchased securities of the United States and Allied Governments in amounts greater than the war budget of Japan. All the Du Pont concerns and the General Motors Company, of which the Du Pont Company owns 27.6 percent of the stock, specialised in the manufacture of war essentials for the American Government, Mr. Doremus said.

AMERICAN LEGATION CHANGES ANNOUNCED

Rodgers, Second Secretary, Is Transferred To Siam As Acting Change d'Affaires

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, August 1.—Mr. J. Donald C. Rodgers, Second Secretary of the American Legation, has been transferred to the American Legation at Siam, where he will act as Charge d'Affaires ad interim in place of Mr. J. C. White. Mr. Rodgers came to Peking in November, 1917, as Third Secretary and was advanced to the rank of Second Secretary late last Winter. He will be replaced at Peking by Mr. R. Atherton, who has been Second and Third Secretary at the American Embassy in Tokio for the past year and one half. Mr. Atherton is expected to reach Peking early in September, whereupon Mr. Rodgers will set out for Bangkok.

A further addition to the staff of the American Legation is Mr. L. B. Meekins, a Trade Commissioner of the Department of Commerce, who is now on his way out to China to act as assistant to Mr. Julean Arnold, Commercial Attache to the Legation. Mr. Meekins has had considerable experience in the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Department of Commerce.

Dr. C. D. Tenney, the Chinese Secretary of the American Legation, who has been very ill in Peitaiho for the past five weeks, is now in much better health and will resume his work at the Legation in September. He had obtained leave of absence with permission to return to the United States, but will not avail himself of this leave until some time next year. Mr. Willys R. Peck, the American Consul in Tsingtau, who has been acting for Dr. Tenney, will accordingly return to his regular post in September.

FRONTIER DEFENSE ARMY PUSHING INTO MONGOLIA

Campers Meeting Expedition On March Fail To Observe Its Commercial Aspects

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 31.—The forces of the former War Participation Army, now the Frontier Defense Army, are on their way by companies and regiments up to the plateau of Mongolia, according to the observation of quite impartial observers. A party of foreigners, who had been camping in Mongolia for several weeks, away from the newspapers and all rumors of a Mongolian expedition, met these troops, line on line of grey clad soldiery, and wondered why and where they were going.

My informant was interested to hear that these troops were the old war participation army. He said they were entirely composed of very young men, privates and officers alike, that they seemed cheerful, well-clothed and well fed, but with the usual Chinese laxity of marching order. He stopped and questioned a few. "Where are you going?" The answer was sometimes: "I don't know," and sometimes, "Who knows?" He examined their equipment, which seemed new and fresh, the covers still on the guns, which were in good condition and of recent make. Most of the guns were of Japanese, a few of German make.

The foreigners observed with great interest the familiar Ford machine, with truck body, on the upper plateau. They saw several merry carloads of soldiers running these vans over the plains, where some novice was practising and learning to drive. Some vans and many wagons were seen laden with military supplies, pushing northward. No cars answering to the description of those with closed tops to be used for carrying troops into outer Mongolia were seen, nor were any seen 'stuck in the mud,' as rumor reports they were, on the pass leading up to the plateau.

When the travelers were informed that the expedition was claimed to be for commercial purposes, they were surprised. "Everything we saw was entirely of a military nature," they said, "and looked like preparations for a big drive."

But in the matter of colonisation, the Chinese, they said, are no doubt interested. For four days' journey from Kalgan into Mongolia, the land is owned and well cultivated by Chinese, who have bought the land at two dollars an acre from the Mongols. The Japanese, they said, were not at all in evidence beyond Manchuria. The people despise them, they said, and Japanese are strictly prohibited from living or carrying on business north of Kalgan.

How to protect your skin from the harmful effects of this climate

Before going out, protect your skin by an application of Pond's Vanishing Cream. Use it on your hands and neck as well as your face. Compare the fresh, soft condition in which it keeps your face with the drawn, dry feeling that generally follows exposure to the weather.

Based on an ingredient which doctors have used for years for its softening, beautifying qualities, Pond's Vanishing Cream is of the utmost value in overcoming all dryness and restoring the normal pliancy to the skin.

It is absolutely free from greasiness. You can use it throughout the day or you can put it on while dressing for the evening, with the knowledge that not a bit of it will remain on the skin to make it shiny. It has a wonderfully beautifying effect, and as a base for powder it is so effective that one powdering is sufficient for the whole evening. Try it the very next time you want your skin to look its very best.

Only the very freshest, purest ingredients are used in the preparation of Pond's Vanishing Cream. It will not grow hair or down on the skin. Get a jar or tube of it today at any drug or department store.

S.C.C. Beats Rest

The afternoon of yesterday's Bank Holiday was brought to a fitting close when the Shanghai Cricket Club with brilliant fielding put it all over an eleven representing the Rest of Shanghai.

Capt. Cooper, commanding the Rest, had the misfortune to lose the toss and so had the pleasure of fielding in the very hot sun which the cricketers were favored with. Clifford and Pearson were sent out by Capt. Grimshaw to face the bowling of Ollerdessen of the Recreation Club and Shroff of the Parsees. C. C. Clifford succumbed after he had collected 4 through the medium of C. Ollerdessen to Shroff's bowling, but a very good stand was made by Pearson and Anderson till the latter was caught by C. Ollerdessen to Milner's bowling (49-2-28).

Pearson had the misfortune to be run out soon after the score had passed the 60 mark; it was unfortunate for this promising young player for he seemed to be nicely set (62-3-38). Barnes excelled himself for the last wicket, picking up 23 not out in an innings carefully played. Two lives were given the homesters' wicket keeper during the compiling of his 23 but as both were not of the easy kind the fielders responsible can to a certain extent be excused. T. G. Pearson and Hansell were responsible for 14 and 11 runs respectively towards the total of 149 all told.

Fielding on the part of the visiting team was decidely poor but that was probably due to one or two of the original team not turning up and their places having to be substituted. H. Ollerdessen and Milner took up the cudgels on behalf of the Rest after tea and when the former had bagged 18 he was well caught in the slips by Read to Hansell's bowling. Main, who relieved Ollerdessen, tried to find a six, but Monk was too good for him, making a fine catch out in the country, thus retiring Main before he had made more than 1. Monk made good again after Cooper had added 13 to the score sheet picking this player up at second slip very neatly. The rest of the team could only muster 18 between them and with Mr. Extras down as 8 the innings was brought to a close for 62.

A feature of the game was the notable absence of a single boundary; not a 4 was on the score sheet, due no doubt to the heavy state of the ground and the exceptionally good fielding of the S. C. C. team. They could do nothing wrong in both catching and ground fielding.

Of the bowling departments of the respective sides, Shroff for the Rest did well, taking 6 wickets at a cost of 37 runs. This young player of the Parsee C. C. is a crackerjack bowler with his round arm deliveries and although he seems easy to play from the pavilion, players and the score sheets of the past few games he has participated in will show different. Clifford with 5 wickets for 15 and Hansell with 3 for 22 proved the best of the quartette tried by the S. C. C. It's the first time Willie Clifford has bowled with success this season and it is to hoped that now he has found his length he will continue to do damage to all batsmens' wickets opposed to him.

Anfu Club Strengthening Vast Political Spider-Web

Preparing Way For Wholesale Sweep At Next Election; Intriguing For All Appointive Office Plums

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 31.—It must be admitted that for efficiency the Anfu Club has every other organisation in China stopped. Like a great spider it is spinning its web from Peking north, south, east, and west throughout the provinces, ever doubling and redoubling the strength of the meshes that bind the central point, Peking. Peace negotiations may shortly be resumed, it is said bitterly in Peking, since the Anfu Club has almost completed plans for taking over control of the entire country.

Since the first move of the peacemakers will be to dissolve the new and old parliaments and to elect a new one, the Anfu members have made preparations for a wholesale sweep of the country in the next election. Larger additions to the party funds are planned. It is rumored that Kung Hsin-chan has been offered the post of premier on condition of his appropriating certain government funds for the treasury of the Anfu Club. At present, as is well known, members of Parliament who are willing to join the Anfus are given an extra allowance of $300 each. Parliament is thus well in hand.

For government positions in Peking an endless amount of intrigue has been going on in the last few weeks. A premier acceptable to the President is acceptable to the Anfus, who must endorse his nomination in Parliament, only if he will agree to their conditions, which consist mainly of handing over strategic posts to Anfu members. The Anfu Club absolutely insists on holding the three posts of Ministry of Finance, Interior and Communications, which in giving them control of the treasury, the railroads and the internal commerce and development of China will allow them to sell their country for what it is worth. It is known that the Anfus also demand appointment of the chief secretary to the cabinet, and fifty posts of the 'presidential selected' and 'ministerial re ommended' grades. The regular method of obtaining government appointments is as follows: as soon as a man is nominated for a certain position, he receives a number of letters recommending certain persons for certain posts, accompanied by intimations that either his appointment will be vetoed in case he refuses to comply or his work held up at every point where parliamentary approval can be required.

In the provinces the Anfu Club is growing stronger day by day. Branches have been started in thirteen provinces. A systematic campaign has recently been pushed for replacing provincial officials not affiliated with the Anfus by loyal Anfu men. An example of their methods has appeared in Shantung, where the governor, Shen Ming-chang, was dismissed by mandate the other day, following certain agitations in Tsinanfu against the Anfu organisation there which Shen had been unable to repress. The people there in their excitement over the Japanese boycott destroyed an Anfu newspaper which had been siding with the Japanese, arresting and insulting its editors, and the branch club thereupon wired the central club that local civil officials were anti-Anfu. Shen was therefore dismissed, and the post, it is understood, has been offered to Chu Ying-kuang, ex-governor of Chekiang, on condition of his appointing certain magistrates from members of the "club." Much the same process of replacement is being attempted in Shensi, where the governor, an anti-Anfu man, is being surrounded and undermined by the intrigues of the Anfu branch in his province.

The increase of Anfu power in military circles has been put into the able hands of General Hsu Shu-cheng, whose wonderful scheme for continuing the War Participation army under a new name, establishing an organ for the handling of ill-gained military funds, and for controlling the vast wealth and space of Mongolia for China has been formulated under the name of the Frontier Development Commission. The interplay of military governors in the Manchurian provinces, it is said, is another method of fixing Anfu power under military tutelage in this region. Meng, the governor of Kirin, was found to be of too independent a mind properly to forward the interests of the "club."

Finally new posts are being created for Anfu members to increase their patronage. The subdivision of military and civil governorships in the provinces is highly recommended in Anfu circles, with the idea of placing Anfu men in all provinces to assist their campaign of power. Small wonder that with the Anfu club thus on the crest of the wave of victory, ambitious young officials are willing to sell out to the organisation.

With the appointment of an Anfu premier, as a last move, the carrying out of the conditions for internal peace will play entirely into the hands of the Anfu Club.

The reception will begin at 5 p.m. and there will be a musical program, dancing for those who desire it, Chinese juggling, refreshments and a few short addresses by Americans and Chinese.

The reception is for both men and women and all members of the University Club have been invited to bring their families and friends. CASTORIA for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them willfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEFFA, M. D.,
Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy.
A. F. FESLER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"For several years I recommended your 'Castoria' and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD PARRISH, M. D.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."
J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

LINE IS ESTABLISHED BY RETREATING RUSSIANS

Traffic From Ekaterinburg In Flight Is Now Pouring Through Omsk

(Reuter's Service)

Harbin, August 1.—Reuter's correspondent is reliably informed that the Siberian army has now occupied the trenches prepared some time ago which form a strong strategical position. The enemy has relaxed his pressure and is occupied in looting the territory he has occupied.

It appears that Trotsky, before beginning the offensive, transferred twenty-seven divisions from Denikin's front to the east.

Cossacks Volunteering

Harbin, August 2.—Reuter's correspondent is officially informed that the Siberian Cossacks have applied to the Ruler, Admiral Koltchak, offering to mobilise all the Cossack population in Siberia, which is anxious to assist in the fight against the Bolsheviks.

In reply the Ruler thanked the Cossacks for this great proof of their patriotism at the present difficult moment and consented to mobilise the Cossacks of the 1900 to 1918 classes.

Peasants Giving Aid

Harbin, August 2.—It is reported from Blagovestchensk that armed peasants are continuing with success the suppression of the Bolshevik movement in that region.

Traffic Is In Flight

Omsk, July 30.—The traffic being evacuated from Ekaterinburg and the northern Urals is now crowding through Omsk. There hundred trains remain to come through and these are being passed eastwards at the rate of forty a day. A total of 30,000 wagons and 600 engines has been evacuated from all the fronts while less than a thousand wagons and no serviceable engines have been left in the hands of the Bolsheviks.

The whole of these important operations are being directed by the engineer-officers of the British Railway Mission under the personal supervision of General Jack and the energy and skill displayed in this hazardous work has met with generous appreciation from Allies and Russians alike.

Holding Bolsheviks

Harbin, July 27.—It is reported from Omsk that the Bolshevik army, despite repeated orders from Trotsky, is unable to break through our lines defending Chelabinsk. There are reasons to believe that Trotsky was greatly impressed by the successes of our Ural armies, as the result of which he was obliged to send strong reinforcements there, thereby relaxing the pressure against our center.

It is possible that the enemy will renew his attempts to establish communication with Turkestan.

Cossacks To Mobilise

Harbin, July 27.—Ataman Kalmikoff has ordered a mobilisation of the Cossacks of the Ussuri region, of the Gradekovo, Poltava and Platonovo-Alexandrovsk communities for three weeks in order to quench the Bolshevik movement in this region.

Harbin, August 1.—It is reported from Krasnoyarsk that the order issued by Governor-General Rosanoff granting forgiveness to those Reds who deliver themselves to the military authorities with their arms is meeting with the greatest success. Armed Bolsheviks are flocking to headquarters.

Harbin, August 2.—General Gaida has passed through Harbin on his way to Vladivostok.

General Dutoff has left Harbin for Omsk to report to the Ruler on conditions in the Russian Far East.

On Volga Front

London, July 30.—A Russian communique today reports:

There is a continued volunteer advance on the Volga front which renders the Bolshevist position at Astrakhan precarious.

The Volunteers are now within five miles of Kamishin. Their entry to Samodlovka, north of Yelan, has been followed by a continued advance across the Belashov-Kamishin Railway. The volunteers have commenced a further advance on the Kharkof-Poltava front and have captured Akhtirka while, further south, the Bolshevists admit they have been forced to evacuate Konstantinograd.

British In North Russia Have Situation In Hand

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 31.—On the North Russia Front steps have been taken to prevent further trouble among our Russian troops. The Bolshevists continue to move westward along the shores of the White Sea, sacking and murdering.

General Denikin appears to be holding his own on all his fronts but his prospects depend on his ability to improve the material conditions of the inhabitants in the liberated area.

More Revelations Of Secret History Of War Come To Light At Berlin

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, August 2.—(Via Koukaza).—A general Germano-Bolshevik strike has been declared at Basle.

More Revelations

Berlin, July 31.—Revelations of the secret history of the war continue daily. Most of them are mutual recriminations but the main fact emerges that after August the German leaders were torn with conflicting emotions, von Ludendorff holding his ground until the end of September when he admitted that hope was gone.

This resulted in a complete change in the attitude of the army, culminating in von Hindenburg's dramatic declaration on October 3 insisting on the immediate offer of peace, despite the loss of the German colonies, Alsace and Poland.

Debate At Weimar

Weimar, July 29.—There have been several days' debate in the National Assembly concerning the responsibility for continuing the War after 1917, when it is declared there were favorable opportunities for obtaining peace. Herr Bauer and Herr Erzberger fastened the responsibility upon the Michaelis Government declaring that it was dominated by the Army Command.

Today Herr Erzberger, replying to attacks, stated that a more favorable situation for peace than in 1917 could not be conceived. It was not utilised owing to the weakness of the Government, which was dominated by the soldiers. He accused the Michaelis Government of duplicity, disunion and helplessness.

Ultimately a motion moved by the Right of lack of confidence, in the Government was rejected by 243 votes to 53 and a vote of confidence was passed by a big majority.

Fire Brigade Busy With Two Alarms

Aids Chapei Department In Afternoon; Fights Thibet Road Outbreak Last Night

The local fire department rendered effective aid to the Chapei department yesterday afternoon when a threatening blaze was discovered in an alleyway off South Haining Road, outside the Settlement boundary. The Shanghai department was notified and the engine of the Hongkew division pumped water through a long line laid by the Chapei firemen. Three shops were destroyed and three others more or less damaged.

At 9:37 o'clock last night the Sinza division was called to cope with a fire in a general merchandise shop at B 4-5-6-7-8 Sinza Road where some Taels 500 damage was done. The blaze had a big start before the department was called but it was held when the firemen fought the fire at close quarters. Piles of bagging and sacking caused dense clouds of smoke which attracted a big crowd.

VICTORY LOAN TOTAL GOES TO HIGHER LEVEL

Report Of Sales Of British Securities Made In Commons By Chancellor Of Exchequer

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—In the House of Commons today, Mr. Austen Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced that the Victory Loan now totalled about £768 millions, of which stock and bonds applied for in cash totalled nearly £575 millions including about £19 for which treasury bills had been tendered.

He pointed out that since January 1 there had also been raised in cash by national war bonds over £290 millions and by war savings certificates £47 millions; making, with the Victory Loan, a cash total of £800 millions, apart from treasury bills and short term advances.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said he thought the response to the loan was satisfactory, taking into account the tremendous effort made on the occasion of the last war loan and the further issues of war bonds and war savings certificates.

He stated he did not contemplate any new loan at present.

BRITISH LABOR'S VIEW ANSWERED IN ESTHONIA

Government Says Intervention Has Enabled People To Form Democratic Republic

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—Referring to the labor resolution passed at the Southport Conference against intervention in Russia, the Esthonian provisional government has issued a statement saying that they are struggling to retain their independence and the right of self-determination and have established a democratic republic, owing to the help of the Allies, and especially of Great Britain, for which the people are deeply grateful. They trust the English democracy will not refuse them further support and declare if this support is withheld Esthonia will inevitably become the victim of an imperialist communism.

WHAT WOMAN NEEDS

above all things are Health and Happiness. These are the true Woman's Rights! Every woman is entitled to them. Dame Nature intended her daughters to be healthy in body and happy in mind. Any woman conscious of pain and trouble which she feels might be removed will be well advised to make careful enquiry as to the cause. If it is found—as indeed is frequently the case—that a disordered digestion is giving rise to ill-health and the consequent depression of spirits, medicine of the right sort will doubtless soon set matters right. But it must be of the right sort. Beecham's Pills are to be strongly recommended for woman's needs. They may be taken with perfect confidence for derangements of the digestive organs, including such unpleasant ailments as sick-headache, biliousness, flatulence, constipation and the lassitude and worries often incidental to her sex. Every woman may get nearer to Health and Happiness by using

Banking Service with AMERICA —direct and personal

EXPORTERS or importers now engaged in, or thinking of, trade with America would do well to consider not only the special nature of our facilities, but also the personal interest we take in every one of our customers' transactions.

First of all, we offer direct banking service—without intermediary dealings, or unnecessary delays.

Equally important is our personal service. Every transaction is followed through, both here and in America, by our own representatives with a personal interest, the value of which is evident in the service rendered.

May we talk with you about America?

TIENTSIN FRACAS STILL UNSETTLED INCIDENT

Washington Despatches Say United States Is Demanding Full Reparation From Japan

That the "Tientsin Incident" is by no means a closed incident is apparent from the following Washington despatch, sent out to American papers under date of July 6, which says:

"Tokio and Washington are engaged in a diplomatic duel over the Tientsin affair, the outcome of which is being watched with interest by the envoys of all other nations at the American capital.

"The United States demands satisfaction from the attacks upon and inhuman treatment of American soldiers by Japanese soldiers at Tientsin last March and for the indignities suffered by the American consul and American army officers, when interceding for the protection of the Yankee doughboys.

"Japan contends that the affair was an ordinary 'soldiers' brawl' in which one side was no more to blame than the other, and has sought to appease the United States by expressing regret to the officials concerned for the occurrences. According to Tokio, Col. Wilder, commander of the American troops at Tientsin, presented an American expression of regret to the Japanese general, and Japan thereupon consented to an exchange of regrets. The State and War departments deny that Col. Wilder delivered an expression of regret. The United States does not concede the incident closed and Acting Secretary of State Polk is pressing for full satisfaction by the Japanese government.

Expressions Of Regret

"In attempting to close the incident on a basis of mutual regret Mr. Obata, the Japanese Minister in Peking, called on Dr. Reinsch, and expressed regret. At the same time Acting Japanese Consul-General Kamei called on P. Stewart Heintzleman, American Consul-General at Tientsin, and presented the following note:

"'I have the honor to convey to you, under instructions from my government, a formal expression of my deep regret for the fact that on March 12, last, my compatriots, having entered the French concession, used violence upon American soldiers, and that on your way back from the Japanese concession behaved rudely against yourself.'

"Mr. Kamei then addressed Col. Wilder the following note:

"'While I have expressed to your Consul-General my regret for the violence to which my compatriots resorted in the French concession against soldiers in your command on the night of March 12, last, I also have the honor to communicate to you my deep regret for the possible lack of friendliness and caution on the part of the Japanese, even though in the midst of confusion, in treating the wounded American soldier in the same night.'"

Soldier Is Stabbed

"The 'wounded soldier' referred to was Joe Rohner, an American corporal of the Fifteenth Infantry, from Indiana, who, according to official army reports, had 'his left leg completely paralysed as a result of a bayonet stab at the base of the spine severing the nerves controlling that limb.'

"Rohner, after being stabbed from behind by a Japanese bayonet, was thrown into the courtyard of a Japanese police station and left there, bleeding and half naked. Only the insistence of Mr. Heintzleman saved his life, because the Japanese officials swore there were no Americans concealed in the police station and refused to permit search to be made.

"After Rohner's prostrate form was discovered, the officials said they had misunderstood Mr. Heintzleman's inquiry. The attitude of the Japanese officials on this case is regarded here as constituting more than 'a possible lack of friendliness' toward Rohner. Some suitable amends so far as it is possible to make them, will have to be procured from Japan before this part of the story is declared a closed incident.

"Two other offenses which may have to be dealt with by Japan concern the threats and attacks made by the Japanese on Capt. Roy H. Higgins of the Fifteenth Infantry, and the deliberate affront to the uniform of the United States army involved in the arrest of Corporal De Cordova of the American provost guard by Japanese.

Indignant To Officer

"Capt. Higgins was stoned by Japanese shortly after the fracas started but the more serious acts toward him were committed later after the Japanese troops had taken him in custody. Col. Wilder reported officially that the Japanese soldiers forced this American officer wearing the uniform of the United States army, to walk backward at the point of the bayonet. For the apparent purpose of amusing their crowd and attempting to find signs of cowardice on the part of this American officer, the Japanese kept threatening Capt. Higgins with their bayonets by drawing back and as Col. Wilder reports 'going through the motion of jabbing him in the abdomen.' The fact that the American officer stood this ordeal without flinching is no reason to minimise its seriousness, army men say, and there is a natural inquiry as to whether the Japanese government intends to mete out proper punishment to the officials who were guilty of threats and these attacks against a captain of the U. S. Army.

"The case of Corporal De Cordova also calls for some further action than a mere apology, it is explained. Investigation shows that the action of the Japanese was without precedent in this case because the American corporal was at his post of duty trying to restore order when he was attacked without provocation.

"Although it was realised that he was an American officer serving as part of the provost guard the Japanese struck him over the head, disarmed him, and then added to his humiliation by placing him under arrest. The American officials are in a position to definitely place the blame for these acts on specific Japanese individuals but there is nothing so far to show that Japan is willing to punish them."

PEKING ASKED TO HEAR HONAN RAIL DISPUTE

Assembly Speaker To Present Opposition To Building Line With Japanese Money

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, July 31.—The Honan Provincial Assembly, being dissatisfied with Director Sze's statement of policy in regard to the Tung-Lo Railway, has despatched its speaker to Peking to lay the whole case before the Government and insist that any agreement regarding the construction of the Kuanyintang-Tungkuan section with Japanese capital and under the supervision of Japanese engineers be annulled. As a result of the imminent arrival of Speaker Kang from Honan and of the popular feeling in Honan that caused his mission the Ministry of Communications fears that the continuance of its Tung-Lo Railway policy will start more trouble than it can handle and has consequently arranged to lay the whole case before the Cabinet at an early meeting. The Government's attitude towards the Tung-Lo case and its reply to the speaker of the Honan Assembly will be decided at this meeting.

We have to report a quiet week with few bills offering and very little business passing generally. There was very little demand for Remittance Taels T.T. on Shanghai: The rate remained about 96.7—96.725 Chinese market, with a limited demand. Dollars: rose to 72.—72.2 Chinese market but fell again to 71.75—71.95 buyers and sellers respectively. The Hupeh mint is reported to be coining about 100,000 dollars per day from Sycee. Interest: 14 percent. Changsha exchange: 26.

Imports

Piece Goods.—No business to report for forward delivery in Home cargo. Shanghai Mill cloths have advanced considerably.

Yarn.—Still in good demand at steady prices.

Exports

There is a steady demand for White Vegetable and Admiral Tallow, quite abnormal for the time of year. In the absence of further supplies the quotations for Sesamum Seed have appreciated again and any arrivals are quickly snapped up. Sesamum oil has been purchased considerably for America, and the local price has soared up. Wood oil is steady and bean oil firmer with no sellers at present. Available supplies of second quality cowhides find a ready sale, but the amount is insignificant.

Municipal Notification

No. 2640

GENERAL MUNICIPAL RATE

(Translation from the Chinese)

At the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers held on April 9, a Resolution was passed authorizing an increase in the General Municipal Rate as from July 1, from 12 per cent. to 14 per cent. per annum.

This Resolution was passed upon the Council's recommendation, which was only made with the greatest reluctance, and because it was found that the expenditure required to provide for the proper administration of the Settlement in 1919 would greatly exceed the Settlement's revenue, if the General Municipal Rate were calculated upon the old basis of 12 per cent. per annum. Obviously the Council could not present a Budget to the Ratepayers which showed a deficit, so it became necessary to consider by what means the Settlement's revenue could be increased. It was found possible to increase the estimated receipts from wharfage dues and to reduce expenditure to some extent, but there still remained a substantial deficit. How was this deficit to be converted into a surplus was the problem that presented itself. Wharfage dues had already been increased as far as was possible, licence fees admitted of no increase and expenditure under all heads had been reduced already as much as possible. Under these circumstances and as the sources of Municipal revenue for which provision is made under the Land Regulations are so very limited, the Council had to look to Land Tax and General Municipal Rate to raise the extra revenue required.

Upon very careful consideration it appeared to the Council that the additional burden should fairly be borne by owners of land and occupiers of houses proportionately, and that accordingly the levy should be increased in the case of Land Tax to 7/10 of 1 per cent. and in the case of General Municipal Rate to 14 per cent., with effect from July 1. With these increases it was possible for the Council to submit to the Ratepayers at their meeting in April a Budget that showed a surplus of Tls. 93,000 which, it may be remarked, is far below that margin of safety which has in the past been considered necessary to the preservation of the credit of the Settlement at a high level. The Council's explanations as to the need for increasing the General Municipal Rate to 14 per cent. from the half year beginning July 1 were fully appreciated and unanimously approved by the Ratepayers and accordingly General Municipal Rate at 14 per cent. has now become due and payable.

Although the proceedings at the meeting of Ratepayers were published in full in the Chinese Press, Sin Wan Pao, Shun Pao, Hsin Shun Pao, etc., of April 10/11 it seems that the majority of Chinese ratepayers did not at the time pay any particular attention thereto, so that the reasons for the increase were not, it is regretted, understood or appreciated by them and from investigations made by the Council it appears that a good deal of misunderstanding exists and that it is therefore desirable that a detailed explanation should be published. That this is so has, moreover, been emphasized by the many petitions that have been forwarded to the Council by Street Associations, Shopkeepers' Associations and others, protesting against the increase above referred to and against the special levy of General Municipal Rate at 1 per cent. which the Council was also directed by the Ratepayers to collect for the purposes explained hereunder.

The Council accordingly requests the close attention of Chinese Ratepayers to the following explanations:—

1.—Rates are raised to provide for the cost of the proper administration of the Settlement.

2.—Rates are payable on exactly the same basis by foreigners and Chinese, viz. 12 per cent. until June 30, and thereafter at 14 per cent.

3.—The special levy of 1 per cent. which it should be emphasized is a levy for this year only and is payable by a single payment is likewise payable by foreigners and Chinese.

4.—It is a remarkable fact that the General Municipal Rate has stood unchanged at 12 per cent. since 1908 until July of this year, whilst taxation in all other countries of the world has increased enormously. The petitioners very rightly state that the cost of living has gone up very considerably of recent years, but they seem to have overlooked the fact that all the expenses of the Council, costs of labour, materials etc., have, likewise, gone up very considerably, and the fact that the rate has not been changed is due to two chief considerations:—

(1) The increased rental value of property in the Settlement, and

(2) The fact that during the War, until December 31, 1918 the Council saved no less than Tls. 880,000 because it did not pay the salaries of those Municipal employes who went on war service. The Municipal administration did not, however, suffer, because those employes who remained behind did the work of those who had gone on war service.

5.—Against this saving of Tls. 880,000, the Ratepayers at the last Annual Meeting on April 9 (the proceedings of which were fully reported in the Chinese papers) directed that the Council should pay to those who have been on War Service one-half their pay, i.e., Tls. 440,000, but they specifically directed that no employe should receive more than Tls. 8,000 and that anything already paid to him by the Council should be taken into consideration, so that from Tls. 440,000, which is one-half the amount saved, the actual amount to be paid to such employes under the Resolution was reduced to an amount of approximately Tls. 320,000, of which the Ratepayers are now called upon to provide only Tls. 222,200 by means of the special levy on land and houses, the balance being covered by the estimated surplus on the Council's Ordinary Budget for this year.

It should be clearly understood that the payment of this Tls. 320,000 is not for War Services, which have already been paid for by the Allied Governments, but on account of the pay which would ordinarily have been drawn by such employes for their service to the Municipal Council.

It may be noted also that of the Tls. 222,200, the Chinese who pay the General Municipal Rate are only called upon to pay say Tls. 85,000.

It may also be noted that since January 1 of this year, there has been a further saving because a large number of Municipal employes have not yet returned from war service.

6.—If Municipal employes had not gone on war service the increase in the General Municipal Rate from 12 to 14 per cent. must inevitably have taken place at least two years, probably 2½ years, ago, and the Ratepayers foreign and Chinese, would have had to pay at least say Tls. 650,000 more than they are in fact now being called upon to pay by the special levy—this because under normal conditions and except for the Council's desire to keep taxation as low as possible—no part of the surplus on the Ordinary Budget would be devoted to this purpose. Of the Tls. 880,000 the Chinese Ratepayers of the General Municipal Rate would have had to pay a total of say Tls. 240,000 as compared with Tls. 85,000 which they are now called upon to pay, so that they are actually saving rates to the extent of Tls. 252,000.

7.—The special levy of 1 per cent. is payable once only and when the full one per cent. has been paid the levy ceases for ever.

The Council hopes that the above explanations will remove any misunderstanding that may exist and that the Chinese Ratepayers will realise that the increased rate of 14 per cent. and the special levy of 1 per cent. must be paid. In regard to the latter, the Chairman and Acting Chairman and the Secretary of the Council have had several conversations with the foreign lawyer, Mr. Master, and with Messrs. Chang Nyeh-yung (張弈庸), Chu Lai-feng (祝賚豐), Shen Tun-ho (沈敦和) and Sung Han-chang (宋漢章), who have interested themselves in the matter on behalf of certain of the petitioners above referred to. These gentlemen pointed out that the collection of the special levy of 1 per cent. in a single payment was indeed likely to cause some hardship to the poorer Chinese Ratepayers and they suggested that the Council should remove this hardship by spreading the payment over a period, so that it should be collected in installments. Ever ready and willing so far as it can, to alleviate or remove hardship, the Council readily concurred with this suggestion, and accordingly Chinese Ratepayers are notified that the 1 per cent. special levy will be collected in 3 equal quarterly payments, commencing with the October collection of rates. One-third of the 1 per cent. will be collected in October, one-third in January, 1920, and the last one-third in April, 1920, thus payment of this special levy will be made easy for all. The occupier of a house at a rental of $10 per month will pay $0.40 each quarter for three quarters only or at the rate of less than $0.14 per month.

Having granted this indulgence and having offered such explanations as must surely appeal to every reasonable minded person, the Council does not expect to hear any further talk on the part of Chinese Ratepayers in regard to refusing to pay Municipal Rates, for the Rates must be paid and the Council must deal with any refusal according to law.

What Will Japan Do?

STILL another report of Japan's intentions with respect to Shantung comes from Washington. The Charge d'Affaires in the American capital says Japan's promises will be adhered to. Kiaochow will be returned, subject only to a Japanese concession in Tsingtau and control of the railways formerly held by Germany. This is not complete restitution, but it at least conforms to the Twenty-one Demands. Whether the Charge speaks with authority or whether he is only talking for American consumption to placate the high feeling in the United States Senate, one can only guess. Certainly it is for Tokio to clear up ugly doubts by making a frank and forthright statement of what it intends to do. Nothing else will satisfy an aroused world opinion. And there is no doubt that such opinion is aroused.

The Coming Trial

(New York Times)

IT is lucky for William Hohenzollern that his trial is to take place on English soil—not at all because the English will be more sympathetic with him than another nation might be, but because there is a traditional fairness and impartiality about English justice which no other country, not even our own, has been able to surpass. The object of the French and Italian courts is to obtain a conviction; the aim of an English court is to administer justice. Our own practice is marred by far too much opportunity for delay, by devices of technicality that cheat justice of her due. It is not going too far to say that within a period covered by the life of a generation the future of a criminal has been almost a gamble here, with personal or local prejudices entering so largely into the decisions of court and jury that it has been sometimes regrettably hard and sometimes regrettably easy to predict the outcome. We need go no further than the stern convictions of seditionists in the West and their easy acquittal, or most indulgent treatment, in the East, to vindicate what we say about the uncertainty of American justice.

But in England justice is justice. The personality of the accused is forgotten the moment he takes his place in the dock. Few technicalities intervene. A change of venue on the ground of local prejudice is of rare occurrence, for the reason that the English mind cannot conceive of a prejudice overruling the orderly processes of justice. Of course, this has not always been the case. It is the present-day course of justice in England, coming from a rigid pruning which has cut away all the unjust rules that once made it so hard for an accused man to obtain justice in an English court. Our friends in France and Italy are still struggling with that problem, and have not yet solved it; and we ourselves are not the nation to cast a stone at them.

It is fair, too, that the Graf who was once a Kaiser should take his place in the dock, instead of having some place of semi-honor assigned to him. He is not impeached; he is indicted. If Warren Hastings had a place of his own before the House of Lords, if President Johnson was able to absent himself altogether from his trial, there is no precedent there that can excuse William from the dock. They were accused of public misdemeanors committed by virtue of their office; he is accused of high crimes. He is being tried as Charles Stuart was tried, for crimes committed by an individual. There is no design, we believe, to humiliate him; but for the crimes of which he is accused there is no place for him but the place where men accused of crime always stand.

Control Of Industry Or Free Competition?

By Archer Wall Douglas
(The Annalist, New York)

It was one of the pleasant illusions bred by the unity of national spirit during the war that, in the years to come, we should put in active operation in the business affairs of life that spirit of co-operation which so decisively and so quickly won the conflict for us. It was not a new thought nor aspiration, for it has been the dream of thinking and sympathetic humanity in every age. But it is an unpalatable fact that this dream was apparently never so far from realisation as it is today.

Before the war there was a growing feeling among thoughtful men in the business world that we were on the road toward putting into actual practice such of the tenets of socialism as time and experience might approve. But today we are equally sure that we have borrowed enough of its way and methods, and that the remainder which it offers seems both impracticable and destructive.

Fortunately for our future we had actual experience in the example of the Government taking over many of the leading industries during the war. It is, of course, easy to say that the results would have been worse had not the Government intervened, and that the plan has really never had a fair trial because of the exigencies of war. But the average American is a pragmatist, inasmuch as he usually judges theories and methods by their results, and the insistent and general demand for the return to private ownership of the industries which the Government took over during the war is the best evidence of the country's estimate of Government control of industry. This estimate centers largely around the railroads as a salient example, and is summed up in a few words—incompetence and extravagance; greatly increased charges to shippers and the traveling public, and distinctly depreciated service. We are very apt to think, however, that the failure of the Government plan may be due to politics or the inevitable red tape, or, in some instances, to the incompetent and inexperienced men who were placed in charge. So we imagine corporate control is a different story, because of the employment of business methods by men of long experience who inevitably introduce increased economies and greater efficiency by concentration of effort and by cutting out that duplication of labor which results from the operation of many separate entities in the same line of business.

The trouble about this theory is that, while it is unanswerable on paper, it does not prevail in actual life, because it leaves human nature and its inalienable peculiarities and traits out of its calculation. To put it baldly, the inherent impulse and main purpose of every consolidation or combination for the control of an industry are to make more money by monopoly than is found possible to do by competition. For the end really sought is the elimination of competition and the consequent control of prices.

Any one who has any doubt on this score has only to examine the history of those innumerable consolidations which ran riot in the first decade of this century and whose consolidation were to put an end to that fierce competition which already threatened their great earning power.

The control of an industry of any moment today involves a great and unusually widespread organisation with tentacles in every part of the country.

Every such consolidation, now as then, has many high-salaried officials who usually have outside interests which naturally conflict with their duties to the original concern. The offices are generally in buildings with high rents, and the matters of ease and comfort, and sometimes decorations, overtop those of economy. There are many private offices with clerks and stenographers who are busy only part of the time, especially when the boss is away. As against this is the common custom of the smaller concern, where all work upon the same floor in open view of each other, where loafing on the job is not easy when every one is unconsciously watching every one else.

There is much specialisation of work where many men do only one thing, and are not always busy at that, as opposed to the custom in a lesser concern of every man being a maid-of-all-work and doing whatever he is called upon to do. There is much unnecessary traveling, especially by the officials, and at the expense of the concern. Telegrams and long distance telephone calls are freely used when in many cases a letter would answer as well. There is always a percentage of employes who are not really needed, but it is nobody's business to weed them out. There is superficial examination of expense accounts, and much entertaining which looks well, but gets nowhere, and which the smaller manufacturer dispenses with because he cannot afford it.

The greater the concern the more it must subscribe to all sorts of enterprises and charities as a matter of policy. The larger the business the more numerous the leaks which no one suspects, and which usually turn up by accident. There are extraneous activities added to the "curriculum" of the organisation which do not contribute to its original purpose, but are only an added expense. The greater the business the greater the necessity of system and method and they are expensive and not as efficient as the personal equation of the intelligent and trained individual in the smaller organisation. So, likewise, in the selling end. There are often agencies and warehouses which may be necessary, but are costly as compared with the operation of the one central manufacturing plant.

Now all of these things and many more like them are very human, often inevitable, sometimes very admirable and serve a certain economic and social purpose. But they are not economical compared with the operations and methods of a smaller and more compact plant. The economies which result in a large consolidation are usually, and often solely, those of manufacturing, but they are more than offset by those innumerable overhead expenses which I have recited. The smaller concern has to consider every item of expense, and, as a natural consequence, its cost of doing business is always less than that of its great competitor even though its gross percentage of profit is usually smaller.

The most serious feature of the control of any industry is the loss of incentive on the part of the monopolising party as to rendition of service. Service is confessedly the greatest and most effective bid for patronage, and it is usually rendered in proportion to the extent to which competition exists.

The worst feature of the control of an industry is the elimination of competition brought about by the consolidation of all the former producing and competing units. Competition is often a ruthless procedure, but no other way has yet been discovered to produce satisfactory results. Where there is but one source of supply, human nature is not apt to exert itself more than is absolutely necessary for a business which perforce can go nowhere else.

During the war the one striking feature in transportation was apparently the utter indifference displayed toward the convenience and comfort of the traveling public. There were reasons enough for the undeniable lack of service, but one contributing cause—seldom mentioned or discussed—was the lack of morale and esprit de corps among those whose business was to serve the general public. In the end the control of any industry usually brings its own reward in the creation of new competition incited by the great money making which monopoly exhibits so long as its control exists.

The business world, and the consumer, have learned that monopolies are by their very nature expensive and uneconomical and that competition alone is the source of lower costs and satisfactory service.

The Epidemic Here

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Sir.—You speak in THE CHINA PRESS of the present epidemic of Asiatic cholera as being "Choleraic Diarrhoea." I'm very sure it's a most virulent type of real Asiatic cholera.

A man returned to Lieu-oo from Shanghai ill, and died the next day. Two days later another member of the family contracted it, and in a few more days eight persons in the family had cholera, and three have died.

In a second family where a man came from Shanghai, two are dead and two more on the point of death, and by the time this reaches you other members of the family will be down with it or dead.

I saw these cases. It is typical cholera. Not only do the old Chinese doctors say it is cholera but the scientifically foreign trained Chinese doctors say it is Asiatic cholera.

In still another family here, I'm told, where the head of the family came from Shanghai ill, he died, his wife and daughter died, and the sole survivor of the family is one little boy.

Is the business interest of Shanghai more precious than the lives of the people of China? Why aren't people plainly told this is cholera?

Very respectfully,

BESSIE B. SINCLAIR, M.D.

Lieu-oo, Kiangsu,
July 31, 1919.

Is Life Only Success?

Could you make a success of life with "The Moon and Sixpence?" Or must you have the Sun, Bond Street, and Half-a-Crown?

Mr. W. Somerset Maugham's story, entitled "The Moon and Sixpence," is the tale of a man who passed through life with that equipment plus genius, and a most tragic and gruesomely fascinating book it makes.

"I have an idea that some men are born out of their due place," says Mr. Maugham.

"Accident has cast them amid certain surroundings, but they have always a nostalgia for a home they know not. They are strangers in their birthplace, and the leafy lanes they have known from childhood, or the populous streets in which they have played, remain but a place of passage.

"They may spend their whole lives aliens among their kindred, and remain aloof among the only scenes they have ever known.

"Perhaps it is this sense of strangeness that sends men far and wide in the search for something permanent to which they may attach themselves. Perhaps some deep-rooted atavism urges the wanderer back to lands which his ancestors left in the dim beginnings of history. Sometimes man hits upon a place to which he mysteriously feels that he belongs. Here is the home he sought, and he will settle amid scenes that he has never seen before, among men he has never known, as though they were familiar to him from his birth. Here he finds rest."

Such a man was Charles Strickland, that artist of genius whose barbaric story Mr. Maugham tells so well. He found home, fame, and a terrible death in Tahiti, and his life from beginning to end was the most "inartistic" that man could conceive. As to "fulfilment," was such a "fulfilment" worth while? Did it fill full anything worth filling?

Take the case of another man whose briefer story is told in this suggestive book—"the story of a man I had known at St. Thomas's Hospital."

"He was a Jew named Abraham, a blond, rather stout young man, shy and very unassuming; but he had remarkable gifts. He entered the hospital with a scholarship, and during the five years of the curriculum gained every prize that was open to him.

"Finally he was elected to a position on the staff and his career was assured. So far as human things can be predicted, it was certain that he would rise to the greatest heights of his profession. Honors and wealth awaited him. Before he entered upon his new duties he wished to take a holiday, and, having no private means, he went as surgeon on a tramp steamer to the Levant.

"In a few weeks the authorities received his resignation of the coveted position on the staff. It created profound astonishment, and wild rumors were current. Whenever a man does anything unexpected his fellows ascribe it to the most discreditable motives. But there was a man ready to step into Abraham's shoes, and Abraham was forgotten.

"It was, perhaps, ten years later that one morning on board ship about to land at Alexandria, I was bidden to line up with the other passengers for the doctor's examination. The doctor was a stout man in shabby clothes, and when he took off his hat I noticed that he was very bald. I had an idea that I had seen him before. Suddenly I remembered.

"'Abraham,' I said.

"He turned to me with a puzzled look, and then, recognising me, seized my hand. . . . It was a very modest position that he occupied, and there was about him an air of straitened circumstances. Then he told me his story.

"When he set out on his holiday in the Mediterranean he had every intention of returning to London and his appointment at St. Thomas's. One morning the tramp docked at Alexandria, and from the deck he looked at the city, white in the sunlight, and the crowd on the wharf; he saw the natives in their shabby gabardines, the blacks from the Soudan, the noisy throng of Greeks and Italians, the grave Turks in tarbooshes, the sunshine and the blue sky, and something happened to him.

"He could not describe it. It was like a thunder-clap, he said, and then, dissatisfied with this, he said it was like a revelation. Something seemed to twist his heart, and suddenly he felt an exultation, a sense of his life in Alexandria. He had himself at home, and he made up his mind there and then, in a minute, that he would live the rest of his life in Alexandria. He had no great difficulty in leaving the ship, and in twenty-four hours, with all his belongings, he was on shore. . . .

"'I didn't care what anybody thought. It wasn't I that acted, but something stronger than me. I thought I would go to a little Greek hotel, while I looked about, and I felt I knew where to find one. And do you know, I walked straight there, and when I saw it I recognised it at once.'

"Presently he entered the Government service, and there he had been ever since.

"'Have you never regretted it?'

"'Never for a minute. I earn just enough to live upon and I'm satisfied. I ask nothing more than to remain as I am till I die. I've had a wonderful life.'"

The story then goes on to tell about Sir Alec Carmichael, the man who took Abraham's place when he failed to return.

"He had a beautiful old house in Queen Anne Street, and being a man of taste he had furnished it admirably. When his wife, a tall, lovely creature in cloth of gold, had left us, I remarked laughingly on the change in his present circumstances from those when we had both been medical students. . . . I should think he earned ten thousand a year, and his knighthood was but the first of the honors which must inevitably fall to his lot.

"'I've done pretty well,' he said, 'but the strange thing is that I owe it all to one piece of luck. . . .

"'Abraham had a genius for surgery. No one had a look in with him when he was appointed Registrar at St. Thomas's. I hadn't a chance of getting on the staff. I should have had to become a G.P., and you know what likelihood there is for a G.P. ever to get out of the common rut. But Abraham fell out, and I got the job. That gave me my opportunity.'

"'I suppose there was some kink in Abraham. Poor devil, he's gone to the dogs altogether. . . . The fact is that it's not enough to have brains. The thing that counts is character. Abraham hadn't got character.'

"Character? I should have thought it needed a good deal of character to throw up a career after half-an-hour's meditation, because you saw in another way of living a most intense significance; and it required still more character never to regret the sudden step. But I said nothing. Alec Carmichael proceeded: '. . . . But if I weren't personally concerned I should be sorry at the waste. It seems a rotten thing that a man should make such a hash of life.'

"I wondered if Abraham really had made a hash of life. Is to do what you most want, to live under the conditions that please you, in peace with yourself, to make a hash of life; and is it success to be an eminent surgeon with ten thousand a year and a beautiful wife?

"I suppose it depends on what meaning you attach to life, the claim which you acknowledge to society, and the claim of the individual. But again I held my tongue, for who am I to argue with a knight?"

Forgiving Germany; A Japanese View

Now that the war is over and the treaty of peace signed it is to be hoped that the campaign of hate and invective against the enemy will cease and the public mind will be given a rest. Four years of abuse is long enough either to give or receive. We do not suggest that the Germans did not deserve it, or that they should not have been subjected to the steady showers of venom directed at them, but now that we have said our worst about them, and nothing that we can further say can possibly make them out any worse than the Allied publicists and peoples have described them to be, what is the good of keeping it up? To keep on hitting the nail after it has been driven home is futile, not to say uninteresting, and may but spoil the job. To cherish revenge still after punishment has been inflicted is but to corrupt one's own breast and to degrade civilisation. Why should we be angry because the Germans do not go on their knees to us in repentance? Were we in their shoes should we be seen prostrating ourselves before them in abject petition for pardon? I trow not. No doubt some of the Germans consider that we should repent, since they do not believe their country responsible for the war, but blame Russia, holding that if England and France had been willing to remain neutral Germany would soon have settled Russia and ended the war. We laugh at such a plea and are pleased to term it dishonest, but it is no sign of fair-play to shut one's eyes to the other fellow's point of view, even though he be mistaken. Wherever the real cause of the war rests, or no matter where the real blame and responsibility lies, no good can come of dishonoring ourselves by continuing to abuse the enemy and to dwell with gloating on his atrocities and crimes. The present disposition to build up generations of hate and contumely after Peace has come forebodes ill for the Allies so long as it is encouraged, as it is sure to react on the internal character of the rising generation and produce bitter fruit. We have all been wounded and humiliated by this terrible war: it will remain a scar on the face of our civilisation for untold generations to come; and consequently an attitude of contribution and repentance becomes us much better than one of haughty superiority and disdain. The Allies must not forget that they are far from perfect in the sight of Heaven, and if they do not repent their weakness in being unable to prevent this outburst of savagery and bloodshed, there will be visited upon them a still worse war, if that be possible. Wars will never cease until the heart of humanity is regenerated by the Spirit of Heaven, and becomes Christlike, a condition far removed from most of our political leaders and policy-markers. While we are crowing over the fallen and waving the proud flag of our own egoism, the Disposer of all events may be saying "Thou fool!" "Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall!"

'Chic': What Is It?

"That Indefinable Something" which goes by the name of "chic" is an elusive quality which would appear to be by the gift of the gods inborn in some of us and as inexplicably omitted from others. "Smartness," which is so often mistaken for it, is its twin sister, yet miles removed in the degree of its desirability, for while smartness is more often a matter of clothes, chic depends on a certan attitude of mind which treats of matters sartorial from the intellectual point of view and disdains the mere question of costliness.

Chic is not a matter of fine feathers; it is a matter of artistic feeling. The "vraie Parisienne" will build up her appearance as a painter will build up a composition. It is not sufficient for her that waists are worn high, necks low, and skirts narrow. For her, "la ligne" is all important. It is not for nothing that her bedroom is equipped with a long cheval-glass. She makes good use of it, studying every line in relation to the rest.

The chic of the Frenchwoman's outdoor appearance comes mainly from the fact that she dresses expressly for the street, taking into consideration the background against which her suit has to be seen. It is rarely that she goes abroad in any but a costume of quiet navy or black, for, although she may affect brilliant tones in the boudoir, she realises how fatal it would be to attempt to vie in color with the kaleidoscopic tones of the boulevards.

Again, the perfect adjustment of clothes to personality plays a very large element in the composition of "chic." To be the mistress of fashion rather than its slave, to mould and modify the mode, that is the art which differentiates the chic woman from the dowdy. The personal note which proclaims that the individual possesses her own views on clothes and that it is her brain and not that of the dressmaker which is the true inspiration of her attire plays what is after all the most important note of all. For it is seldom that a brainless woman is truly chic. It is perhaps because, as a rule, chic spells brains that we have come to value it so highly!

Can The World Starve?

Will the time come when the world cannot feed its inhabitants? Not, according to a writer in the magazine Power, if the farmer goes about the business of increasing production on scientific lines. To quote:

"Mr. Crooks, a great English landowner, after studying the question carefully, came to the conclusion that during the last seventy years there was an average increase of six million bread-eaters a year, and that at such a rate the time might be foreseen when, all the arable surface of the globe being used up, there would of all necessity be a bread scarcity. The year 1931 was given as the approximate date. But that was before the war. . . .

"Though the danger does not seem very threatening as yet, it is advisable to lend a willing ear to the patient investigators who point out the remedy before it is too late. Professor H. Coutant, well versed in agricultural questions, has contrived a method which would procure a harvest ten times greater by using ten times less fertiliser. This abrupt statement seems at first somewhat paradoxical; not so when you follow the professor's simple and practical demonstration.

"Why waste on acres of ground tons of fertilising substances that are mostly absorbed by weeds, whereas the tiny grain of wheat drains an insignificant portion of them? We should blush for shame at the thought that in our century of intense life and culture, cereals are still left to strive or die in the same old way as five hundred years ago! Instead of always breaking up new lands for the raising of crops, let us turn to the old and increase their output. Each grain of wheat should yield not one but thirty or forty ears; and in its turn each ear should contain not merely thirty, but sixty new grains.

"Those figures are not given at random, they are the fruit of experiments such as were witnessed by Dr. Emile Rey, the Senator of the Department du Lot, M. Felix, professor of agriculture at the Professional School of Vierzon, etc., and many well known men specialised in the domain of farming.

"Not only cereals, but potatoes, vegetables, flowers, etc., can be treated in the same way, though, of course, the proportions of fertiliser used vary somewhat for each different species. As an example, fifteen especially prepared tubercles have produced 275 pounds of potatoes.

"Now for the general principle. Any grain or tubercle contains a nutritive reserve that will feed the new germ until its roots can take from the environment all the principles it needs. Why not increase the reserve? Why not saturate the grain with some fertilising substance, feed it forcibly, and only plant it afterward? A few pounds of manure will bring about superior results to those formerly obtained by hundreds of pounds. The tonic fixed by the starch of the grain is merely a solution of salt of potassium nitrate (18 grams to a litre) of water. Between twelve and thirty-six hours are necessary for complete saturation; the grains then drop to the bottom of the jar. In the case of tubercles, another formula is used—23 grains of potassium nitrate plus 2 grams of copper sulphate for each litre of water; according to their size the potatoes are to be immersed from two to five hours.

"To insure a still better result the cereals should then be powdered with a mixture of copper sulphate and lime; and once the tubercles have been thoroughly dried, the operator will sprinkle them with sublimated flower of brimstone, which keeps them free from disease.

"To thore who follow his advice Professor H. Coutant promises a harvest such as they have never yet beheld."

HONAN IS OPPOSING NAMING OF INSPECTOR

Purpose Of Militarists Said To Be Concentration Of Power In Groups Of Provinces

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, August 1.—Regarding the proposed appointment of General Tsao Kun as Inspector-General of the Provinces of Chihli, Honan and Shantung, the Government has sent commissioners to these provinces to consult with the local officials and gentry as to the desirability of putting General Tsao into the post. The main opposition to the appointment comes from Honan, and the Government has received a telegram from the assembly of that province urging that Tsao should not receive the position. The assembly states that the province is getting on well under Tuchun Chao Ti, who is quite competent to hold down his job and does not require an Inspector-General over him. Such an appointment would, according to the opinion of the assembly, only create complications and unpleasantness.

Tsao Kun himself is anxious to accept the new appointment and has declared his willingness to resign from his position as High Commissioner of Military Affairs for Hunan, Hupeh, Kiangsi and Szechuen as soon as the Inspectorate-General of Chihli, Honan and Shantung is assured to him. The idea of giving this new post to Tsao is in a line with the new policy of the military party of combining a group of provinces under one powerful Tuchun with the title of Inspector-General. This has been done in the case of Chang Tso-lin; and General Hsu Shu-cheng, although bearing a different title, holds even greater powers in Inner Mongolia and the territory adjoining it. This concentration of great military power in a few men is of distinct advantage to the militarists and their supporters in that it limits negotiations to the few selected leaders and makes the schemes of the military clique easier of execution.

Monteagle Escapes Heavy Storm Outside

C.P.O.S. Liner Arriving Here Sunday Is Not Damaged By Typhoon

Suffering no effects of the typhoon, the Canadian Pacific Ocean Services liner Monteagle arrived at Hongkew Wharf on Sunday evening, 24 days out from Vancouver. The liner brought second-class mail, 25 passengers for Shanghai and 4,000 tons of cargo for this port. The Monteagle has 31 through passengers.

The steamer was due here Friday morning but was delayed when rough weather was encountered. After anchoring for some hours off Fairway Buoy, the liner put out to sea, going some 150 miles outside the Saddles.

The ship sustained no damage despite reports said to have been received here Saturday night that life boats on one side had been lost. The ship's master took the precaution of avoiding the storm and passengers experienced no inconvenience from the rough weather.

Among the passengers for Shanghai were Messrs. J. R. Brand and J. Cox, local men returning from service with the British armies.

Passengers Departed

Per N.Y.K. s.s. Kitano Maru for London: Mr. and Mrs. Thoerdore, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. K. Farman and child, Misses H. C. Bowser, E. Luthy, D. Field.

President Hsu To Postpone Appointment Of Premier

Reported He Will Take No Steps In Naming Head Of Cabinet Until House Adjourns

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, August 1.—Government officials here say that the President, having failed in his attempt to obtain the appointment of a compromise premier and then push the negotiations for domestic peace, will now do nothing in these directions until Parliament has adjourned on the 12th. After the departure of this body for its summer holiday President Hsu will have a somewhat freer hand; and it is his intention, in view of Kung's reluctance to continue in office as Acting Premier, to appoint a successor to Kung and reconstruct the Cabinet as far as is necessary. When this has been done an attempt will be made to appoint a chief Northern delegate to the Shanghai Conference and bring the domestic peace problem to a speedy and satisfactory solution.

Such successors to Kung Hsin-chan and his colleagues as the President may appoint in this manner can only serve in a temporary capacity, as the appointment of the premier and cabinet ministers must be ratified by Parliament before they are valid. It is stated, however, that such a ministry will serve the purpose if it can hold together until the nation is united again, for without it no one can be found to take the post of chief delegate to Shanghai. This acting cabinet, like the Kung Cabinet had it been formed, would have in any case to resign in favor of a new Cabinet, representative of the entire nation, at the conclusion of peace between the North and the South.

Result Of Conference

Peking, July 31.—As a result of last evening's political meeting, when Wu Chi-sun, the Chief Secretary to the President, and various of the President's supporters came together with the leaders of the Anfu Club and a number of militarists to discuss the nomination of Kung Hsin-chan for the premiership, the appointment of Kung has been postponed indefinitely. Kung as a candidate for premier may, indeed, be definitely regarded as out of the running henceforth.

The opposition last evening is definitely stated to have come from General Tuan Chi-jui, who is the friend and patron of General Chin Yun-peng, the present Minister of War. Chin Yun-peng and Kung Hsin-chan have been unfriendly ever since Kung took over the Ministry of Finance, their hostility being due to Kung's policy of cutting down expenses and keeping the War Ministry short of funds. This has embarrassed Chin, who in the past two months has frequently been absent from his post, both with and without leave. Chin tendered his resignation to the President yesterday, stating that he could no longer serve in the Cabinet under Kung Hsin-chan, and, when his resignation was not accepted, announced that he was determined to be out of office and would therefore resign again today. The settlement of the question by the withdrawal of Kung's nomination for the premiership will probably lead General Chin Yun-peng to change his mind about resigning.

That the eleventh hour opposition of the Anfu leaders to Kung as premier had something to do with the withdrawal of his nomination goes without saying. As your correspondent stated yesterday, the Anfu men had some reason for suspecting Kung, who had opposed them on the Bank of China regulations and who was unwilling to promise them a rake-off on certain of the Government revenues. This opposition was, however, in a fair way to be smoothed over when General Tuan blocked the appointment by imposing his own personality upon the negotiations and stiffening the backs of the Anfu Club.

Anfu Club Criticised

In most quarters it is thought that the Anfu leaders have been foolish not to support Kung and see him through to the premiership because, although opposed to many of the Anfu policies, Kung is still an Anfu man. He is, furthermore, a pliable man, and the Anfuites could have actually controlled the Northern Government under the cloak of Kung and his good political record.

The essential point in the failure to put through Kung's nomination is, however, that the domestic peace solution will be held up for just as much longer as it will take to find a suitable premier, appoint him and get him and his Cabinet established. Thus the President, who was willing to compromise on Kung in the interests of the nation's peace, has once more fought a losing battle. There is no acceptable man in sight for the premiership, the President having exhausted all his possibilities in this direction, and the Anfu Club possessing no man who is at the same time suitable to their ends and acceptable to the President. There is much talk in Anfu circles about bringing forward the name of the Vice-Minister of the Interior, but this is merely in pursuance of the Anfu policy of always having a candidate in the public eye. This particular official is exactly as acceptable to President Hsu as were Chu Shen and Ni Shih-chung, both of whom the Anfuites suggested to him some weeks ago.

FOCH RECEIVES HONORS ON VISIT TO ENGLAND

Enthusiastic Welcome Given French Commander On Arrival In London

(French Wireless To Reuter)

Paris, August 3.—(Via Lyons and Koukaza).—Marshal Foch has replied to an invitation he has received that he will be pleased to visit Sheffield to receive the freedom of the city.

(Reuter's Service)

Made Field-Marshall

London, July 30.—The King has conferred the baton of a Field-Marshal of the British Army on Marshal Foch.

Given Warm Welcome

London, July 30.—Marshal Foch had a most enthusiastic welcome by the City of London today, when, accompanied by General Weygand and other distinguished French generals, he drove in a State carriage from the Carlton Hotel to the Guildhall to receive the honorary freedom of the City. The streets were gaily decorated and packed with cheering crowds.

Marshal Foch was received with loud and prolonged cheering and the playing of the "Marseillaise" when he entered the Guildhall, where a large and distinguished company was gathered, including H. R. H. Prince Arthur of Connaught, the French Ambassador, Field-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, General Sir Henry Wilson, General Sir Ian Hamilton, Admiral Sir Rosslyn Weyss, Mr. Winston Churchill, Mr. Walter Long, Mr. G. N. Barnes and other members of the Government.

The Address conferring the freedom of the City described Marshal Foch as an heroic figure and a model for future generations of soldiers. A tribute was paid to Marshal Foch's brilliant part in the War, his stern sense of duty, his patriotism and his supreme knowledge of the science of war. It declared he had earned the gratitude of millions and the honor and glory of unparalleled success. Marshal Foch was asked to accept a copy of the resolution of the Court of Common Council voting him a sword of honor as a token of profound admiration for his brilliant services to France and the world.

Foch Replies

In acknowledging the freedom of the City and the sword of honor Marshal Foch, speaking in French, paid a great tribute to the valor of the British soldiers and the skill of the British Generals, especially Feld-Marshal Sir Douglas Haig, and also the wonderful work of the industrial classes of Great Britain in providing the allies with abundant guns and munitions.

Dealing with the great German offensive on March 21, 1918, Marshal Foch said that the British armies, although very exhausted, fought as brilliant a rear-guard action as had ever been fought. He paid an eloquent tribute to the magnificent qualities of the British and the Dominions armies in the great counter-attacks after August, 1918, and said their dash and bravery was unsurpassable. They never stopped smashing the German war-machine and would have gone through to the Meuse or to the Rhine but for the Armistice.

DOMINIONS' PART IN WAR REVIEWED IN COMMONS

Under Secretary For Colonies Tells Achievements Of British Subjects Overseas

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 30.—In the House of Commons today, Lieut.-Colonel Amery, Under Secretary for the Colonies, speaking on the Colonial Office estimates, emphasised the immensity of the patriotic efforts made during the war by our fellow subjects overseas. It might be gauged by noting the sum total of their military efforts in the field before November 11, 1918, either measuring by the number of lives sacrificed and the numbers of the enemy killed and captured or the total hours spent in the trenches or both. Canada and Australia individually had contributed a greater military effort than the United States with a population of over a hundred million.

Moreover the efforts of the Crown colonies were far greater than was usually realised. In every part of the Empire the white population had contributed as high "as any community in the world. Over two-thirds of the males in East Africa and also in Rhodesia took the field."

The combatant native troops were considerable and their fighting value had been recognised by all the commanding generals concerned. The West Africa forces, the King's African Rifles and the West Indies Regiment totalled 80,000 combatants and over half a million carriers and other auxiliaries had been raised in our African colonies. Moreover the native chiefs to the humblest folk everywhere had lavished gifts towards the Red Cross and other funds.

All the colonies had substantially contributed to the cost of the war from revenue, incurring a liability larger than prudence allowed, and therefore he hoped this would be remembered when re-development and reconstruction in the colonies would be considered.

CHANGES IN PROVINCES ARE PLANNED IN PEKING

Conference At Capital Will Plan More Uniform System Of Administration

(From Our Own Correspondent)

Peking, August 1.—The Central Government is making plans for the uniform administration of the provinces after the conclusion of national peace, and with this in view Acting Premier Kung has sent a circular telegram to the provinces, requesting them to send representatives to a large conference which it is proposed to hold in Peking next month. These representatives are to be selected from the provincial assemblies and the various branches of the provincial governments in such a manner as to be as representative of popular thought as possible. At the conference the Government will submit to the delegates plans for standardising provincial administration and will invite suggestions from the delegates, the final results of these joint deliberations to be submitted to the Government for approval and action.
